Madcap Puppets presented: Legend of Little Wolf

Little Wolf was sent to the mountain home of Megissogwan, the giant who terrified his nation for many years. Little Wolf had to free his people but he didn't know how-he thought that he was neither a hunter nor a warrior!

Little Wolf's friend, Woodpecker, helped him by recounting legends of the past: "Bear and the Striped One", an Iroquois Pourquoi tale, "The Firestick", a Native American tale from the Pacific Northwest, and "The Dancing Drum", a Cherokee legend. By these examples Little Wolf discovered his own strengths and gifts and, with help from friends in the audience, he used them to defeat the giant and free his people. Everyone enjoyed the show and students made puppets with the Madcap Team. Many puppets were used in the closing Ceremony. A study guide was available to all at www.madcappuppets.com.

Also....every child/teen at FFP received a book.....USBORNE BOOKS!

Usborne books were purchased through the Literacy for a Lifetime program which are matched by Educational Development Corporation with 50% additional Usborne books for free – both for recipients to make their grants and donations stretch farther and to those giving to make their grants or donations even larger!
